CORRECTION:

Travel to unit. Check what was happening on monitor - had high voltage alarms. Check for correct voltage coming off cart battery it was good. Check power and grounds on tractor connector they were good. Check power at the connector on the back of the cart and found that it was at 1.3 on the big pins. Trace it back and found that there was a bad connection on the center pin of the relay. Squashed it down so it would contact guard and tried again and it was good. Double check voltages and all is good. Call customer and let them know what we found.

Drill controller offline

CORRECTION:

Garret:

- went out to unit that Webb's had been out to and never got working
- installed new controller on the cart as per customer request and put in software
- reconfigured the cart tested and found the cart rate on meter two was still jumping around
- found the bearings on the meter roll were too tight customer was going to change them himself
- the tool had been messed around with before and had the wrong software in it - it thought it was a cart
- put in the right software and tested but still couldn't get the shanks to go up and down
- found that the controller on the tool had failed
- ordered new one
- had one robbed off of the one in the yard
