Repair top rotor cover damage

CORRECTION:

Recovered a/c refrigerant, Removed machine cab and necessary top covers to access the top cover that was damaged, inspected the transition cover behind it for damage and found it was ok for re-use. After new side rail was installed, installed new top cover and re-used top covers and sealed gaps, installed new plastic transition cover and front rotor cover. Re-installed cab and recharged a/c. Topped up coolant level as some was lost from disconnecting heater hose lines. Re-tensioned belts that had been loosened off. Ran up the machine after repairs were completed and verified proper operation. Re-installed covers and shields that were removed during inspection of damages.

ADDITIONAL DESCRIPTION:

- Remove cab from combine to replace top covers
- Replace both rotor top covers over threshing area, plastic transition strip, and re-seal gaps.
